Part B: Correct the Paragraph

Instructions: The following paragraph contains eight grammatical errors of the types you have just practised. Rewrite the paragraph correctly on the lines below. Do not change the meaning.

Me and my cousin went to the library yesterday because their was a book launch. Alot of students had arrived early; the authors table was already surrounded. "Your going to love this novel" she said excitedly. The book had it's cover designed by a local artist, and I liked it better then the other editions. We bought two copies, however, we forgot to get them signed.

Quick reminders:

- Say "my friends and I" when the group is the subject (they are doing something), and "me and my friends" → "my friends and me" when the group is the object (something is done to them).
- Than = comparison (taller than). Then = time / sequence (first this, then that).
- There = place. Their = belonging to them. They're = they are.
- Its = belonging to it. It's = it is.
- Your = belonging to you. You're = you are.
- Apostrophes: the boys (plural, no apostrophe) · the boy's bag (one boy owns it) · the boys' bags (more than one boy owns them).
- A lot is always two words. Alot is not a word in English.
- Dialogue: the comma, full stop, question mark or exclamation mark goes inside the quotation marks. Use a comma before a dialogue tag: "Wait," she said.
- With transition words (however, therefore, moreover, nevertheless), use a semicolon or full stop before the transition word, and a comma after it: I was tired; however, I kept reading.
